MESSIES. WM. B. RIKER & SON.

GENTLEMEN: It is a true saying that "real merit will find recognition." It has certainly proved so with your EXPECTORANT and other remedies. I have never had any confidence in ready-made medicines, but after suffering for six long weeks from a terrible attack of bronchitis, sore throat and chest, and such a distressing cough that I could get no sleep, I was persuaded by my wife to try a bottle of your wonderful EXPECTORANT. In THERE of the bottle. I have had no return of the trouble, and it is now many weeks since. Many of my friends have also ried your splendid medicine on my recommendation, and all certify to its WONDERFUL and SPEKDT curative powers. SURE THAT IT WAS NOT GAS.

Supt. Eufer's Opinion of the Equitable Gas Works Explosion.

Coroner Mess mer this morning began an inquest into the cause of the death of Engineer Frank C. Plaisted in the explosion at the Equitable Gas Company's Works, at Fortieth street and Tenth avenue, at 11 r. M. Dec. St.

John Campbell, the fireman at the gas-works testified that he was in the boiler-room at the time of the explosion. He noticed no smell of escaping gas, and could not account for the explosion. He saw Plaist-d about twenty minutes before the ex-plosion, and was sure that he was sober. E. J. Euler, general superintendent of the works, said: '1 am satished that the explosion was not due to gas, but I don't say that it was caused by at two and four miles, who is expected on Sunday, as an attraction the event should be a one of the most successful ever held in the dynamite."

Thomas Sheehen, the night watchman at the works, was sinety feet away when the explosion took pince. There was no flash, and he noticed no peculiar sinel of gunpowder or other substances.
Michael Gorman, of 500 West Thirty-eighth street, who passed through the cellar half an hour before the explosion occurred, said that he noticed no leak of pas in the cellar. It is rumored that William Miller, the famous Graco-Roman wrestler, boxer and athlete, is in town.

"Clare, little friend, is my heart—that has known what it is to love and suffer—one that you would wish your brother to win?"

"Miss Lestrange, a gentleman downstairs," said a servant, opening the door. "Looks like you, Miss Clare," he added.

"It is Willis Mildred." I said; and then we went down together, and in a few moments I was folded in my brother's arms.

After kissing me tenderly he released, me and turned to Mildred.

"Miss Lestrange," he said. "I am the bearer of a nicesage to you from a dying man, On my travels, almost a year ago, I became acquainted with a man who, somehow, attracted my sempathy, but why, I could not tell. We became friends, but not confidants, for he was strangely reserved about himself, and, though we were together for many menths, we knew little of each other—at least I, knew little of each other—at least I law last link is broken."

Our little son will be four years of age on the 28th inst. In May, 1895, he was attacked with a very painful breaking out of the skin. We called in a physician, who treated him for about four weeks. The child received hitle or no good from the treatment, as the breaking out, supposed by the physician to be hives in an aggravated form, became larger in blotches, and more and more distressing. We were frequently obliged to get up in the night and rub him with sods in water, strong line in the night and rub him with soda in water, strong limi-ments, &c. Finally we called other physicians, until no less than six had attempted to cure him, all alike failing, and the child stradily getting werse and worse, until about the 20th of last July, when we began to give him CUTICUMA RESOLVENT internally, and the CUTICUMA and CUTICUBA SOAP externally, and by the last of Angreat he was so nearly well that we gave him only one dose of the RESOLVENT about every second day for about ten days longer, and he has never been troubled

In all my life I have never seen a woman as beautiful as Mildred.

What though some sorrow lay in the depth of her eyes, were they less deeply, darkly blue, and were not her features perfect from the low, broad brow, with its halo of golden hair, to the daintily rounded chin?

One evening Mildred and I were sitting together in the twilight, that strange, weird

"Darling, darling!"
"Mad with shame and horror, I struggled to release myself.
"Deane, Deane!" I cried in my terror.
"I am here, Mildred,' said the voice of my lover, as Ralph loosed his hold.
"With a glad cry I sprang to him, and the sight must have maddened Ralph.
"So this is your lover, Mildred,' he said; and then he raised his hand and struck Deane across the face.
"Deane was by far the stronger of the two men, and my heart stood still as he put me gently assize, his face colorless, his eyes blazing.
"Coward!" he said, facing Ralph.
"Deane, Deane!" I cried wildly, 'do not strike him, if you love me. Ralph, for God's sake'—
